

ITC Membership

Membership of the Association is open to organisations willing to support and promote the purpose of the Association. Membership of ITC has a number of advantages. It involves you in making the decisions about the scope, timing and content of future courses and about the overall course programme so that ITC meets your education and training needs. It gives you privileged booking on courses, some of which will have a limited number of places for participants. It also entitles you to a reduction in the basic course fees of 10%.

ITC is a non-profit Association, operated for the benefit of its Members. Its finances are arranged so as to cover its costs and allow a small development margin to provide extended services to the waste management community.

ITC needs to be able to provide a service to the broadest range of users if it is to achieve its aim of perpetuating knowledge in order to provide optimum waste management solutions. Consequently its programme and objectives are not biased towards any sector (e.g. industry, regulators, research groups) This means that Members have a clear voice in its operation and management and that its funding is not tied to one source.

ITC has been established as an independent organisation within Switzerland, with the legal structure of an association (Verein).

Membership of the Association is open to any organisation supporting the aims of the ITC.

Benefits of Membership

Membership of ITC has a number of advantages. It involves you in making the decisions about the scope, timing and content of future courses and about the overall course programme so that ITC meets your education and training needs. It gives you privileged booking on courses, some of which will have a limited number of places for participants. It also entitles you to a reduction in the basic course fees of 10%.

For details please refer to the Constitution (ITC Constitution 87 kb)

The membership fee for 2010 is 300 CHF.